"Disparity Study Regarding Minorities and Women-Owned Businesses Before Council"

Sisters in Business would like to inform you about the Disparity Study, which is to go before the Chattanooga City Council next week June 27.

Two SIB's business clients have brought this information to my attention, and SIB would like to bring it to the foreground of its network.

The study involves several factors, of which include the analysis of contracting practices, and equal opportunity for participation in contracts where minorities and women owned businesses are concerned.

Also the study is to provide "both qualitative and quantative data from a socio-economic perspective that will be used to drive the work of the Office of Multicultural Affairs and its advisory board."

To find out more about the study click here to read an article found in the Chattanooga. Also, see the attached email from fellow SIB Network Client Forestine Watson-Haynes.
